

Realization relationship

Realization establishes a contract where the client (the implementing element) promises to fulfill the behavior defined by the supplier (the interface or specification).

Testing in isolation, mocking is easy if we program to interface

Loose Coupling:

